miss cuningham,

we would like to thank you for the devotion and diligent work you have given mount vernon. your assistance and consideration has not ended in the admissions office, but has extended to us through your creation and support of gold key, your readiness to chat during a hectic day, and your reliable smile. as we depart at graduation we will not only remember you as an alumni and director of admissions, but also as a friend who has helped mount vernon junior college become the educational institution it is today.

affectionately,

the class of nineteen hundred and sixty-eight

president: peter d. pelham

president's address: class of 1968

There are many kinds of stories. Yours is a chronicle of the Class of 1968. It has a beginning and an end; its table of contents accurately records the matrix of your theme; and its form gives substance to the meaningful content you have fashioned from your years at Mount Vernon.

Like most historical accounts, yours follows a pattern which reflects not only the major victories but also notes the minor skirmishes won and lost from September, 1966 through June 1968. The frantic episodes of your first year have evolved into the more demanding self-evaluation which you imposed upon yourselves during the year past. The highlights of Orientation and Varieties are still present, but they serve only as a camera obscura through which you now record the more intense and significant outlines of future involvements.

Your personal chronicles are immensely varied; no two chapter headings are identical, for each has her own "inside story." This is as it should be. But it is equally important that you have chosen to record your histories in a collective effort, for the strength of your Class Chronicle is both in the variety, which gives it substance, and in the unity, which binds it into a meaningful whole.

As you begin to determine your future paths I hope that each of you has occasion to draw upon that individual perspective which you developed at Mount Vernon. Know yourself not in part but a whole being fully aware of time, place, and purpose, accepting eagerly a historical role in the community of mankind.
